

Bear takes accidental joyride in unlocked Subaru

brightspotcdn.com

Police in Colorado said a bear 'butt-shifted' a car into neutral and took an unintentional joyride down a hill. The Boulder County Sheriff's Office said the bear apparently opened the doors of the unlocked car and ended up closed inside, UPI wrote. Marks inside the car indicate the bear tried to claw its way out through all four doors, but instead "butt-shifted the car into neutral." The car ended up rolling out of the driveway and about 100 feet down the hill. "The four-legged suspect swiped a tree, rendering the car undrivable, but in the process popped a door open, and fled on foot... er, on paws in an unknown direction," the sheriff's office said.

Wallenda breaks own world record with Canadian wire walk

Professional daredevil Nik Wallenda broke a Guinness World Record when he walked 1,808 feet across a tightrope in a Canadian city.

The performer, who walked a high wire over New York's Times Square with his sister, Lijana Wallenda, just two weeks earlier, broke his own Guinness World Record for longest urban high-wire walk.

The walk, about 30 feet over the ground, lasted for about 30 minutes.

Can you find the penguin among the flock of toucans in this viral brainteaser?

GERGELY DUDÁS/UDOLF

Gergely Dudás' viral works of art challenge people to look closely at an image to find something that doesn't quite belong.

In past brainteasers, he's hidden a panda among snowmen, a card among gift bags, a heart among elephants, a lollipop among ice cream cones, a bunny among cats, a star among Jack-o'-lanterns, a snowman among snowflakes, and a heart among flowers, according to Insider.

He's also released three books of brainteasers: One of holiday puzzles called 'Bear's Merry Book of Hidden Things', a Halloween-themed book called 'Bear's Spooky Book of Hidden Things', and his latest, 'Bear's Springtime Book of Hidden Things'. In his newest brainteaser, Dudás has hidden a penguin among a flock of toucans. Can you find it?

Take a look at the image: Were you able to find the penguin? If not, don't worry. Keep looking. It's there somewhere. If you're still stuck, the answer is revealed below. Keep going if you want to see it. Last chance to turn back! Here it is:

The penguin has a gray face with a white belly, while the surrounding toucans have white faces and gray bodies.

Alligator with soccer ball stuck in mouth rescued in South Carolina

UPI

A pair of wildlife trappers were called to a South Carolina, the US, retention pond for an unusual rescue involving an alligator with a soccer ball stuck in its mouth.

James Sargent, a trapper with The Snake Catcher, responded with helper Chris Boone to the pond in the Osprey Cove neighborhood of Myrtle Beach when neighbors reported the gator, a beloved local resident, had apparently attempted to eat a soccer ball and got the sports equipment stuck in its jaws, UPI reported.

"It almost looked like he wasn't alive at the time," Sargent told WBTV-TV. "But then I did see him moving so I knew he was alive."

Sargent shared photos and video of the unusual rescue, which he said marked the first time an alligator had managed to pull him into the water.

"I have to physically catch him like a fish, bring him close enough to where we can then get the snare on him," he said. "Once we get the snare on him that's connected to a rope so then we got a good hold on it."

The soccer ball was removed and the gator was released back into the pond, eliciting cheers from the crowd of onlookers.

"If only every neighbor was as accepting of their gators as Osprey Cove," Sargent wrote on Facebook.
